PREFACE

THE present volume of American Book-Prices Current includes a large selection from Parts II. and III. of the great library brought together by the late Robert Hoe, sold by the Anderson Auction Company, Part II. on January 8 to 19, and Part III. April 15 to 26. The sale of Part I., on April 24 to May 5, 1911, was reported in the 1911 volume, and that of Part IV., on November 11 to 22, 1912, will be included in the 1913 volume of this compilation. As at the date of writing the final sale has taken place and the library all dispersed, here, perhaps, will be the best place to bring together a few notes regarding the library and the man who formed it.

It has always seemed very fitting that Robert Hoe, of the third generation of his family to be engaged in the manufacture of printing presses, should have been a collector of printed books. In the forty years or more during which he was active in the Hoe business no man did more to cheapen printing processes, and the Hoe presses made possible the cheap newspapers, cheap magazines, and cheap books of our day. But no one realized better than he that the older, slower, and more expensive processes in use before the invention of the rotary press made the better books.

The Hoe library was the result of just about a half century of collecting. As a young man Mr. Hoe bought finely printed English books, such as those produced by the Chiswick press for William Pickering. Later he bought older books from famous Continental presses, illuminated manuscripts, and printed Books of Hours, which he greatly admired and of which he gathered a notable collection. His early interest in old English books is shown by the fact that he gave encouragement and financial assistance to David G. Francis in reprinting Collier's "Bibliographical Account of the Rarest Books in the English Language," published in 1866.

In 1880 he edited a new edition of Maberly's "Print Collector." In January, 1884, with William Loring Andrews, Theodore L. De Vinne, Brayton Ives, and a few others, he organized the Grolier Club, and he was its first president. He was for many years a liberal bidder at most of the important book-sales in America and abroad. In the early days he and Mr. Andrews used to send their bids together to some of the English auction sales; then when the purchases were received the two would draw lots to see which would have first choice. The most important book awarded in this manner was the First Folio Shakespeare, which they bought at the Syston Park sale in December, 1884, for £590. When the box was opened it was Mr. Hoe's good luck to secure first pick. The folio brought $13,000 at the sale.

In the late eighties when Almon W. Griswold was selling the last of his books, the greatest treasures were about equally divided between Mr. Hoe and Mr. Church. Out of the last batch which Griswold brought in a tin box in a cab to Dodd, Mead & Company's store, Mr. Hoe secured one of his best Caxton's, the superb Charlemont copy of Higden's "Polycronicon" (1482); Pynson's edition of Lydgate's "Siege and Destruction of Troy" (1513); and his large paper set of Ben Jonson's "Works" (1616-1640); while Mr. Church got Shakespeare's "Sonnets" (1609), the grand Daniel copy; the first edition of Sidney's "Arcadia" (1590); and "Dives and the Pauper" (1493), one of the earliest and most important books from Pynson's press.

Mr. Hoe did not buy libraries entire as several American collectors have done, though he was the actual purchaser of the library of Mrs. Abby E. Pope, of Brooklyn, sold in 1895, after her death, by her husband, Norton Q. Pope. From the collection he selected the books he wanted, and the balance, the greater portion, was put upon the market. From the Pope collection he secured his two finest Caxtons, the "Morte d'Arthur" and the Gower, most of his Shakespeare quartos, and a good many other books, including some of his rarest Americana. Up to that time he had taken no interest in Americana, but even Mr. Hoe could not resist the attractions of Smith's "New York," large paper and uncut, Filson's "Kentucky," with the map, and Horsmanden's "Negro Plot," in the original boards and uncut, and similar books.

A little later, when the wonderful collection of Americana gathered together by Charles H. Kalbfleisch, a collector of knowledge, discrimination, and courage known to few, was being broken up and distributed, the books were mainly acquired by either Mr. Hoe or Mr. Lefferts. In order that he might not miss any opportunities Mr. Hoe bought almost everything that was offered to him, and turned over what he did not want himself to a firm of Fifth Avenue booksellers, through whose hands they passed into the Church collection.

The total sum realized for the entire Hoe library, 14,588 lots, sold in seventy-nine sessions, was $1,932,056.60. The first portion, sold in 1911, was by far the most important, the 3,538 lots bringing a total of $997,366.00. With comparatively few exceptions, at that first sale, record prices were realized on all the important books and, more strange to say, proportionately high prices were paid in many cases for unimportant and comparatively common books. And, while the wild and enthusiastic bidding shown by some over-zealous buyers at the first sale was somewhat tempered at the later sales, the really great and rare monuments, typographical or literary, generally brought high prices and many new records were established.

The chief reason which brought about the very remarkable success of the sale was the great fame of the library and the high quality of so many of the books included in it. Collectors generally realized that here was an opportunity to secure fine copies of the world's most famous books, and an additional hundred dollars or thousand dollars was a small matter. And rightly, too, for in these days the great rarities among famous books must be snatched at when they appear, otherwise in many cases the opportunity to secure them does not again occur. Price and value of such things is entirely a relative matter. The collector who has the money to gratify his wishes is certainly justified in paying five times the record price for any really rare book he may want, rather than wait a year or five years for the possible chance of saving a few hundred or a few thousand dollars. While he would have been watching for the cheaper copy he can be getting pleasure from the possession of the book. But all this is no defense or excuse for any person paying $50.00 or $100.00 for a book of which a dozen copies might be gathered together from the book shops of London or New York at prices of $10.00, $15.00, or $20.00, equal in every other respect to the Hoe copy though not possessing the book-label of that library. Some fancy prices were paid for Robert Hoe's book-plates during the progress of the sale.

Mr. Hoe in his will while he instructed his executors to sell his library at auction left it to their decision whether the books should be offered in America or in Europe, and it was a serious question for some time whether the entire library, or at least a part of it, might not be sent to London or Paris for sale. The results have certainly justified the decision of the executors. Mr. Hoe had perhaps the finest collection in America of choice French books, and the universal feeling was that this portion of the library might be sacrificed. But even the French books sold well. The more important Paris dealers were represented and a good many books went back to France.

It is certain that for the most part the great American collectors who are outbidding the world for artistic, literary, and historic treasures of every kind are buying them for love of the objects acquired or for the pleasure to be had in their possession and exhibition, and not with the sole idea that their investments may be realized upon at some future time by themselves or by their executors or heirs. But it is pleasant for them to think that with increased competition, brought about by increased wealth, increased interest in all things artistic and literary, and the increasing scarcity of all such objects of the higher class, the market value of their possessions is constantly increasing. This, at least, has been the case with rare books and manuscripts. There is a constantly rising market. Taste, like fashion, is subject to change, and whole groups of books once collected with avidity are now ignored. But the great books, the monuments which stand out in the development of typography or literature in any age or country, hold their own.

Mr. Hoe kept no systematic record of the cost of his library, but it has been estimated that, even including the vast sums he spent upon his bindings, the entire library cost him less than a million dollars. His books were an active man's recreation and pleasure for forty years and more—and still they proved a good investment from a purely monetary point of view.

While auction-records are, generally speaking, the best accessible guide toward estimating the values of rare books in the market, such records should be used with caution. An instance of this, more remarkable than any in the Hoe sale, where great prices were often paid for books of slight rarity, occurred in the Lossing sale at Anderson's on May 20. Lots 367 and 368 were two autograph letters of Zebulon Butler, Colonel in the Revolutionary war, addressed to Andrew Adams, both being written in 1775, upon the subject of licensing tavern-keepers. One of these documents brought $460.00 and the other $555.00. Next to these in our record will be found a short document written and signed by the same man, of almost equal value, historically or autographically, which brought only $3.00, which sum may represent the auction value of such document. The ridiculously high prices made on May 20 resulted from the fact that two agents had been instructed to buy the documents, the principals supposing they would sell for a few dollars only.

In comparison with the Hoe books the other sales of the season were mainly commonplace, no other great private library having been offered. The most important single collection was no doubt that of W. W. Allis, of Milwaukee, sold by the Anderson Auction Company on March 25 and 26. The collection was rich in first editions of nineteenth century English authors, and the presentation copies of the books by Dickens, Lamb, and others brought high prices. Other important sales held at the Anderson Galleries were: the books and autograph letters of Ferdinand Freiligrath, the German poet and friend and correspondent of Longfellow, sold on October 25; the library of W. H. Samson, of Rochester, particularly rich in books relating to Western New York, sold December 12 and 13; the library of George W. Peavey, of Minneapolis, sold December 14 and 15; the library of Capt. J. F. Hinckley, of St. Louis, sold February 27, 28, and 29; and three important portions of the Benson J. Lossing collection, including books and manuscripts, sold May 9 and 10, 20 and 21, and June 5 and 6. Many other sales, some including important books, will be found in the Chronological List.

The Merwin-Clayton Sales Company (now the Merwin Sales Company) held frequent sales, mainly miscellaneous in character, but often including books of value and interest. On October 17, 18, and 19 they sold the library of the Rev. John Wright, of St. Paul; on October 23 the Shakespearian collection of E. G. Drake; on December 7 and 8, the library of Charles M. Crittenden; on December 12, 13, and 14, the library of Frank A. Kerns; and on February 5 and 6, the library of Henry M. Field.

Messrs. C. F. Libbie and Company of Boston held their usual quota of sales, among the more notable being a collection of Lincolniana dispersed September 27 and 28, and the autograph collection of Mary B. Hathaway, of New Bedford, sold on January 10 and 11. Among other sales by them were those of January 30 and 31, March 12, 13, and 14, and March 19, 20, and 21.

Mr. Stan. V. Henkels, at the rooms of Samuel T. Freeman and Company in Philadelphia, held sales of books on October 13 and 14, October 27 and 28, November 3 and 4, January 26 and 27, and March 1 and 2, and of autograph letters and manuscripts on November 7, February 26, and April 19, besides sales of other dates, from which selections have been made and which are enumerated in the Chronological List.

The number of sale catalogues from which selections have been made for the present volume is 118, in which were described about 105,000 lots. Of this total our record enumerates sales of 15,741 lots.

The following scheme of the record is reprinted from the earlier volumes:

The name of the author (or, in the case of anonymous books, the first words of the title) are set in black faced capitals.

Club or Press publications are (generally) under the Club or Press, and a few other books, such as anonymous histories and biographies, are entered under their subject. The titles of the various works of an author, printed in black faced lower case type, are arranged in alphabetical order. This is followed by the place where printed, the printer (in a few cases), the date, and the size of the volume. The first portion of the description is general and applies to all copies of the work. Following this general description is the specific description of the copy or copies of the book as sold, each lot beginning a new line. This specific description is made up as follows:

First. A description of the binding, the abbreviations being those which are universally used and understood.

Second. A statement as to the condition of the particular copy recorded, if on large paper, if with extra plates inserted, if from a famous library, etc.

Third. The name of the sale where the name was given on the catalogue. This does not mean in every case that the name as given is that of the owner of the book, as additions from other unannounced sources are often included with books of a known owner.

Fourth. Capital letter, indicating the name of the auctioneer under whose management the sale took place.

A. is the Anderson Auction Company.

H. is Stan. V. Henkels.

L. is Charles F. Libbie & Company.

M. is the Merwin-Clayton Sales Company.

Fifth. The date of sale. In case of sales of more than a single day's duration this date is that of the first day of the sale.

Sixth. The lot number in the original sale catalogue.

Seventh. The price realized. This is the price for the lot, not per volume.

Finally, the editor wishes to make acknowledgment to his assistant, Miss C. E. Dyett, for her capable work upon the book.
